Humanities and International Studies Program

The Humanities and International Studies Program (HISP), founded in 1985, is a rigorous honors program located at C.K. McClatchy High School. The curriculum—a unique global perspective on learning and understanding—prepares HISP students for success at any college or university in the country.

The core curriculum of HISP thoroughly prepares students for the rigors of college. Over the course of four years, students are immersed in college-level literary works and ideas. HISP does not settle for using only standard high school textbooks. HISP teachers supplement their instruction with in-depth passages and narratives from some of the most respected writers and historians of our age. HISP students read works from authors such as Allende, Tan, Cather, Hosseini, Achebe, Morrison, and Hemmingway as well as the classics. Students are required to read and analyze acclaimed literature and discover how the themes relate to history and culture. HISP students are not merely taught information—they are taught to think. The skills of critical thinking coupled with effective and concise writing prepare HISP students well for the rigors of college course work.
